Diner en Blanc

August 25

New York, NY, USA

You could be forgiven for thinking you've just stumbled upon a small cult when you see hundreds of people moving en masse to an undisclosed location, all dressed impeccably in white. Either that, or you've come across the guest list of a Diddy party. In fact, this Parisian tradition of assembling in famous landmarks and setting up one communal picnic with candelabras, expensive china, silverware and wine glasses will, for the first time this year, hit New York after making its Quebec City debut. The inaugural Diner en Blanc in New York is limited to a thousand guests and the location will be held secret until the last minute.
